GREAT FILMS OF THE 2010’s

Josh Cabat

Most critics agree that in recent years, television has replaced the movies as the most effective medium of visual storytelling. It is certainly true that it is disheartening to look at the movie listings and see nothing but movies that are based on comic books, or movies that are unwanted and unneeded sequels, or both. A closer examination, however, reveals that there have been a great number of films, both domestic and foreign, released in this decade that are certain to take their place as classics. In this class, we will look at excerpts from films like Boyhood, Hugo, The Tree of Life, Beasts of the Southern Wild, Winter’s Bone, Inside Llewyn Davis, Twelve Years a Slave, La La Land and Moonlight as we prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that as an art form, reports of the death of film are premature.

"Now in the 14th year of the king Hezekiah did Sennacherib king of Assyria come up against all the fenced cities of Judah and took them." [2 Kings 18.13] Jerusalem was the capital and Lachish was the next most important city in the kingdom of Judah. In 701 B.C. the mighty Assyrian Empire came and destroyed Lachish. Both the Bible and the palace of Sennacherib at Nineveh provide evidence for this event. This slide lecture will explore what happened before and after the destruction of this ancient city.

Lecture 2: A Portrait of the Vikings

"God save us from the fury of the Norsemen" was a prayer once spoken in many parts of Europe. At the end of the 8th century, the Vikings burst upon a shocked and unsuspecting continent. Lean ships with curved prows forged their way across the seas and penetrated into lands along the rivers. These ships were manned by ferocious warriors who plundered and pillaged. This lecture will present a fascinating portrait of the Northerners: their origins, religion, art, way of life, trails of conquest, explorations in the New World, and lasting contributions to European civilization.

No prior knowledge of these subjects is required.
